Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 16 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Most staying dry and sunny for Thursday.

Today:
Showers in Northeast at first soon clearing away. Then much of Scotland will have a dry, bright day with sunny intervals. Patchy rain and strengthening winds reaching West Coast later.

Tonight:
A mainly dry evening in the east, while the rain over the west coast spreads into the west mainland this evening. Patchy rain will extend to the east overnight.

Friday:
Mainly cloudy with outbreaks of rain. The rain becoming more confined to western areas with central and eastern areas becoming a little brighter and quite warm.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rather cloudy with some rain or showers on Saturday. Sunny intervals and scattered showers on Sunday then mainly dry with some sunshine on Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.